Riots boost John Laing

The infrastructure investor that owns the Metropolitan Police's much-utilised riot squad and firearms training centre at Gravesend in Kent reported that it made a £15 million profit in the first half of the year from its investments in 22 PFI projects. The £280 million John Laing Infrastructure Fund was floated on the stock market last year. It owns projects first developed by John Laing, one of the leading investors in the private finance initiative. The shares ended 1/4p higher at 107 1/2p. (Robert Lea)
